Invisible Fingerprints Plus Psychology Frustrate Forgers

CHICAGO—Crooks won't willingly leave their fingerprints — not even invisible ones; but invisible fingerprints teamed up with psychology are being used by businessmen throughout the country as a two-edged weapon against forgery, a 300-million dollar drain annually on American business.
This is how the system works:
A stranger seeking to cash a check is asked to put his thumbprint in invisible ink on the back of the check.
If the check clears the print remains invisible. But if the check bounces, it is sent to the office of the Canler corp. and developed by a special solution into a visible print.
The resulting visible print is positive identification, which can be checked against local police files or the more than 112 million prints in the FBI files at Washington.
So successful has the system been in discouraging forgeries, said J. W. Field, spokesman for the corporation, that it has not yet been necessary to refer a print to the FBI.
Field said that of the millions of checks cashed under the invisible print system, only 20 were forgeries. Identification was established through local police fingerprint files and 15 arrests have been made so far.
By far, the bulk of the bad checks are for reasons of insufficient funds or closed accounts.
The invisible fingerprinting service is the brainchild of Elwood Brooks, president of the Central Bank & Trust co. of Denver and former official of the American bankers association.

Mystery Mist Wreaks Havoc As Scientists Ponder Cause

TILGHMAN, Md. — Auto paint was eaten away, holes were burned in clothes on the wash lines, and stone houses were discolored. The people of the town were puzzled over the "mystery mist" that was wreaking this havoc. Complaints from residents led to an investigation.
There were several theories. Fertilizer fumes, water cabbages, other things were blamed. Dr. Lewis S. Welty, county medical examiner, explained his water cabbage theory thus:
When the big leaves of the plant rot, they give off hydrogen sulphide fumes. If enough hydrogen sulphide gets into the air and there is a heavy dew, the hydrogen sulphide may dissolve in the dew drops and form sulphur dioxide. That in turn becomes sulphurous acid. The acid does the dirty work.
Maryland state police at nearby Easton said they had received a dozen complaints.

Lawing was the guest speaker at the 3 P. M. service. The meeting is continuing through the week with Rev. Lawing as guest speaker.

Two Illinois Men Certain To Remember Those Ladies

LEWISTOWN, Ill. — Two Illinois men will long remember the girls they left behind them— in fact, they'll never hear the end of it.
J. D. Raker of Liverpool, Ill. brought the anecdote back from a recent western trip.
He and James Raker of Liverpool, Ill., stopped for gas and oil at Kingman, Ariz., one night. They got out for a smoke and a coke, leaving their wives in the car. Shortly afterward, they returned and started for Williams, Calif.
About 135 miles from Kingman, James Raker chatiily addressed his wife. No answer. J. D. Raker then chanced conversation with HIS wife. Silence. A mutual double-take disclosed a uninhabited back seat.
Several hours and 135 miles later the men were rejoined with the by now extremely talkative girls they'd left behind them.

Peanut Butch Profits Much By Fair-Goers' Carelessness

ZANESVILLE, Ohio — County fairgoers are a careless lot, and that's perfectly all right with Earl Kibble, bewhiskered peanut butcher who works various county fair grounds.
Kibble is an early riser, not because he expects to sell peanuts before breakfast, but because it's a good time to search for coins which have been dropped carelessly the night before.
He scours the fairgrounds thoroughly, and is seldom disappointed. He reports finding $10.95 at Urbana, $5.24 at Wilmington, and $20.50 at Charleston, W. Va.
Except that his beard is too dark, Kibble reminds one of Santa Claus, which is not strange, because he lets his beard grow all year in order to play Santa for the children of his neighborhood in Reedsville, Ohio. He shaves once each year—on New Year's day.
The Appomattox Town Council met on Monday night.

MISS LINDA WARRINER WED YESTERDAY

Miss Doris Stickley, of Strasburg will spend the week-end with Miss Easley Shuford. She was a college roommate of Miss Shuford's.
Those who called in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Stanley Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hawkins and son, Mrs. E. O. Hawkins and Vivian Sidney, all of Lynchburg; and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mays and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Stanley.
Rachel Stanley called to see Mrs. Ivanhoe Morgan Saturday.
Alice, Rachel and Joyce Stanley called to see Mrs. Harrington Stanley Saturday evening.

Evergreen Baptist Church, decorated with palms, yellow gladioli, goldenrol and lighted candles, was the scene Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock of the wedding of Miss Linda Louise Warriner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Warriner, of Evergreen, to Sgt. David Anderson Garrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Garrett, of Appomattox. Mrs. Cecil Carter played traditional nuptial music at the organ, and Mrs. Carter Martin sang. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cecil G. Carter.
The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a taupe crepe dress with leaf-green accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses at the shoulder. Her attendent was Miss Gwendolyn Paulette, of Appomattox, who wore an ashes-of-roses crepe dress with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses at the shoulder. Best man was Richard Guill, of Norfolk. Ushers were James and Burke Paulette.
After a trip East, the couple will make their home in Westover, Mass., where the groom is stationed in the Air Corps.

RESOLUTION

Mrs. William A. Coleman

A life of devoted and unselfish service to whatever worthy cause or causes it may espouse, to high principles, to the common welfare and uplift of its fellows, cannot pass without leaving a void in the hearts of its contemporaries.
Helen Ferguson Coleman, lovely, serene, thoughtful, generous, ever alert to the needs and comforts of those about her, so graciously revealed in her every walk of life, those high traits of character that set her apart as a leader and endeared her to all who were privileged to know her.
She was a true child of the South, daughter of a youthful member of Mosby's Command, her young life was greatly influenced by the stirring but tragic events of the Confederate and post-Confederate era. She was an active and loyal member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, having served with distinction as President of the Virginia Division, at other times as U. D. C. State Historian, and as Chairman of the Children's Program. At the time of her accidental death, September 8, 1949, Mrs. Coleman was President of the Appomattox Chapter. To all her assignments she gave unstintingly of her thouchts and efforts.
Her life was a blessing and an inspiration to her family, friends, associates and to her community in general. With heart full of love and cherished memories, we humbly offer this inadequate but sincere memorial to her noble life and fine accomplishments.
—Mrs. W. W. Scott,
Mrs. Clarke Bledsoe.
